

EXTEND HUNT FOR MISSING AVIATOR

JOHN N. WILLYS,
OVERLANDHEAD
COMES TO CITY

Widely Known Automobile
Manufacturer Will Visit
Bismarck on May 9

TO TALK TO DEALERS

Is One of Outstanding Figures in Nation's Industrial Life

John N. Willys, head of the Willys-Overland Automobile Company and the second largest individual automobile manufacturer in the United States, will be in Bismarck on Friday, May 9, it was announced today by W. E. Lahr, president of the Lahr Motor Sales Company. With him will come L. G. Peed, general sales manager of the Willys-Overland Company, who is given much credit for the remarkable success of his company in the last two years.

Mr. Willys is coming to Bismarck for a meeting with Lahr Motor Sales Company dealers in western North Dakota and eastern Montana, responding to an invitation Mr. Lahr has been pressing for two years. It will be the first visit Mr. Willys has made with dealers between Minneapolis and Seattle. About 60 Willys-Overland dealers, including A. R. Glasman, manager of the Lahr Motor Sales Company, branch will be here.

Mr. Lahr was especially pleased with the recognition of Bismarck and Bismarck territory contained in the decision of the company head to come here, it being the first time in 14 years experience that chief officials of the company have visited Bismarck.

Mr. Willys, who is said to be an entertaining as well as a forceful speaker, is a pioneer in the automobile manufacturing business, but has attracted wide attention because of the "come-back" of his company after suffering post-war difficulties.

John N. Willys was born in Canandaigua, New York, his father owning a small brick and tile works and a paper box factory. The merchandising genius of Willys appeared on the surface early in life. Before he was ready for college his father's tile yard at 25 cents a day for after-school labor. Later he tried to sell books, the "Life of Garfield," which was the one flat failure of his career. He went into the laundry business as a youth, and won. Willys decided he must have an education and went back to Canandaigua resolved to become a lawyer. As he was about ready for college his father died. The bicycle craze struck the country about this time. Willys invested $100 and got an agency. At the age of 19 he built a flourishing business. The business went bang in the Free Silver rumormongering of 1896. He became a traveling salesman. Other business he went into, never failing to plunge into a proposition he believed good, and at the age of 27 he was handling a business whose volume totalled $500,000 a year. When the automobile came in Willys realized its possibilities. He sold them, and then decided to build them. His climb up the ladder was remarkable, his place is now secure. His achievement in the automobile business in the last two years ranks as one of the outstanding successes in industrial life in the country.

FORMULAE FAIL CHEMIST AND LEAD TO HIS ARREST AS WIFE POISONER

MR. AND MRS. CLARENCE O. BARING.

BY ALEXANDER HERMAN
White Plains, N. Y., May 3. For many years formulae had been the very life of Clarence O. Baring, chemist; but now they are leading to his living death in a prison cell, lunatic asylum.

For he tried to work out a formula for his own happiness, but he brought about only the near-death of his wife, who accuses him of poisoning her for months.

As a result, Mrs. Baring lies ill, and her husband has to stand trial indicted on charges of attempted murder, felonious and wilful poisoning of food and attempted assault in the first degree.

And the happiness which he sought has fled forever.

Back of it all is a strange tale of a modern Caesar Borgia, a Jekyll-Hyde, who was one man when alone with his test tubes and his formulae, and another, when with his wife.

It is a tale that is even more tragic than the Dr. Arthur Warren Waite tragedy, which ended with the dentist going to the Sing Sing electric chair in 1917 for the poisoning and murder of his father-in-law.

Already reported out by the house agriculture committee, the measure has been brought sharply to the front in the Senate by the announcement of Senator Norbeck, Republican, South Dakota, that he would offer it as an amendment to the tax bill to see "what the Senate thinks of the farmers of the country."

House leaders have indicated an unwillingness to give any farm aid measure right of way until advised regarding the position of President Coolidge, and Chairman Haugen of the House agriculture committee had an appointment with President Coolidge today to discuss this and other agriculture proposals.

The McNary-Haugen bill has the approval of the agriculture department, officials of which collaborated in drafting it.

The formal report of the house committee contends that America cannot have "industrial prosperity much longer with growing agricultural poverty." The report quotes the secretary of agriculture as saying that one out of every four farms in the fifteen corn and wheat states is bankrupt.

The measure, which would create a $200,000,000 grain export corporation with the power to borrow twice the amount, the report asserted, addressed itself to the disparity in purchasing power of farm products, the chief of which corn, wheat, and pork, are "only about twenty percent of the prewar average, while the price index of non-agricultural commodities stands at 168 percent."

Washington, May 3.—The McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, which has been belatedly in committee for the major part of this session of Congress, was thrown today into the ring along with other major measures the leaders are attempting to dispose of.

Already reported out by the house agriculture committee, the measure has been brought sharply to the front in the Senate by the announcement of Senator Norbeck, Republican, South Dakota, that he would offer it as an amendment to the tax bill to see "what the Senate thinks of the farmers of the country."

Havana, Cuba, May 3.—(Detail of two engagements yesterday near Cienfuegos, between forces of government rebel troops and patriots, that he had other news which he "cannot give" were sent to the newspaper La Prensa today by its correspondent at Cienfuegos.

Washington, May 3.—The Cuban government, facing a "condition of violence" in Santa Clara province, caused by revolutionists, has applied to the Washington government for purchase of a considerable amount of arms and ammunition for use by the Zayas forces against the revolutionists.

The appeal today was approved by the state department and forwarded to the War Department where it is regarded as certain that the arms and ammunition asked for will be made available to Cuban authorities without delay.

In the absence of Secretary Weeks, war department officials declined to reveal the amount of munitions asked for but indicated there would be no trouble in filling the orders from the supply of excess war supplies held by the army.

DENIES REPORT
Havana, Cuba, May 3.—The outbreak in Santa Clara province was not ordered by General Carlos Garcia Velez, president of the Veterans and Patriots Association and appears to be the work of impatient members of the organization who could not longer be held in leash. It was denounced today by Margo Garcia Velez, brother of General Velez.

"CLEAN-UP AND PAINT UP" SLOGAN IS SOUNDED IN CITY FOR NEXT WEEK

City Zoned and Pride of Residents of Various Districts To Be Raised in the Campaign—Exact Condition of City To Be Known by Use of Maps, After Inspections Are Made

"Clean Up and Paint Up!" The annual slogan is in vogue again today for next week is "Clean Up and Paint Up Week" in Bismarck.

Bismarck is known as a clean city. The Association of Commerce continues in charge of the next week's campaign wants it to be cleaner.

The city has been divided into zones, and the committee is going to find out, it says, just what part of town has the most pride and will do most toward making Bismarck a city beautiful. Also it is going to show on the map where the bad spots are.

The city is zoned for the clean-up as follows: Zone No. 1, west of Second street, north of N. P. tracks, in charge of T. R. Atkinson; Zone No. 2, Second street to Seventh, north of N. P. tracks, in charge of W. L. Nue; Zone No. 3, Seventh to Twelfth streets, north of N. P. tracks, in charge of Mrs. Carl Nelson; Zone No. 4, east of Twelfth street, in charge of Mrs. Richard Penwarden and F. E. Hedden; Zone No. 5, west of Ninth street south, south of N. P. tracks, in charge of J. P. Jackson; Zone No. 6, east of Ninth street south, south of N. P. tracks.

The zone chairmen are charged with locating the bad spots and reporting to the general committee, composed of T. R. Atkinson, N. E. Bystrum, F. E. Hedden, J. P. Jackson, J. J. MacLeod, Mrs. Carl Nelson, Mrs. Richard Penwarden, Mrs. Morris Zwaist.

It is planned, in addition to the big week next week, to have the city inspected and the inspection record of each month, on a city map. Conditions will be designated by different colored tacks. The map will be placed in a downtown window, so citizens of various zones can see how they stand.

According to A. F. Bradley, secretary of the Association of Commerce, Duluth and other cities of Minnesota, and Fargo, North Dakota, have asked the methods used in the Bismarck clean-up campaign last year, because of the reputation of the city for cleanliness and the success on the campaign last year.

MAJOR MARTIN,
MECHANICIAN,
BEING SOUGHT

Search For Major Martin,
Round World Leader,
Being Extended

PASSED ONE POINT

Searchers Learn He Was Seen
Near Cannery—Fear Disaster Overtook Him

TO USE DOG TEAMS
False Pass, May 3.—(By the A. P.)—A party with dog teams will go today from Chignik, Alaska, to the north side of the Alaska peninsula to search for Major Frederick L. Martin, missing Globe flyer, along the Bering sea.

The weather early this morning promised well here and it was believed that three other aviators who were at Santa Monica, California, May 17 with Major Martin, will depart soon from Dutch Harbor, 180 miles west of False Pass.

Major Martin, who took the ship at Chignik Wednesday with his mechanic staff-sergeant, Alva L. Harvey, to fly to Dutch Harbor, 400 miles southwest of Chignik, was believed to have flown over a portage across the peninsula to its north side.

False Pass, Alaska, May 3.—(By the A. P.)—Definite information that Major Frederick L. Martin, who has been missing since 11:10 a. m. Wednesday passed the cannery at Chignik Lagoon in the direction of Portage Bay, just north of the Shumagin Islands, was reported by an overland searching party when it returned here tonight.

Belief that Major Martin was forced down by a strong gale which arose shortly after he departed from Chignik toward the Bering Sea resulted in orders being broadcast for vessels to "comb" immediately the Bering seashore line from Dutch Harbor, Unalaska Island, to Unangushik, north of Chignik.

The overland searching party definitely learned that Major Martin and his staff sergeant Alva Harvey passed over the Alaska Packers cannery at Chignik Lagoon, just outside of Chignik, in the direction of Portage Bay. He was believed to have chosen his route as a short-cut to Dutch Harbor.

At the time of the departure, a stiff northwest gale sprang up and it started snowing shortly after the airplane was out of sight from Chignik.

It was pointed out that if Major Martin had been forced down before he reached Portage Bay the overland party would have located him. The members of the party also declared that if the American commander of the aerial squadron encircling the globe had landed in Portage Bay without anchoring the plane, the machine would have been blown out to sea.

The latest information received by the searching party which covered the Portage Bay territory indicates that Major Martin might have been forced to the Bering Sea side. Orders were broadcast to all wireless stations to issue calls for any vessels equipped with radio in the Bering Sea to start the hunt for the missing aviator along the southern coast line.

COMPANIONS CONFIDENT
Washington, May 3.—Comrades at Dutch Harbor, Alaska, of Major Martin, missing commander of the army ground and the world flight expedition, believed Martin and his companions are safe and will be located.

A message from Lieut. Lowell Smith, senior officer with the planes at Dutch Harbor, received today by Major-General Patrick, chief of the Air Service, declared Martin and Sergeant Harvey had matches and emergency rations with them sufficient for several weeks.

"We believe he (Martin) is safe and will soon be located," Lieut. Smith in a telegram said the weather was good there today, which helped in the search. No ship was expected to reach Dutch Harbor until Friday, it said, from the "most likely location of the missing flyers." It was pointed out that "there are numerous harbors for possible refuge."

HOW TO MAKE

Garden Committee of Association of Commerce Gives Advice to Citizens

RESULTS OF ITS STUDY

How best to start a lawn, what to plant and when, and how to take care of it—these are some things the Garden Committee of the Association of Commerce hopes to tell people of the city, giving them the results of the study made by members of the committee.

The first statement, herewith, tells about lawns, and other recommendations will be made from time to time.

"Since the board of city commissioners has assured the residents of Bismarck that there will be reduction in the rate charged for water used on lawns and gardens, there should be an increased interest in beautifying the lawns, boulevards and gardens of the city," says a statement by the committee.

"It will be impossible to make Bismarck a 'City Beautiful' unless the citizens generally take an interest in beautifying their home grounds and boulevards," the committee statement added. Members of the garden committee are: Mrs. O. J. St. Ouge, Mrs. F. L. Conklin, H. S. Dobler, Burt Finney, Dr. R. S. Towne and C. L. Young, chairman. The committee's statement on lawns follows:

LAWNS: The first essential in giving the home a proper setting is a properly made and well-kept lawn. This cannot be secured in a haphazard way. The soil must be thoroughly prepared before it is seeded. Every foot of earth must be plowed, or spaded. The soil then should be well pulverized and leveled until a perfect grade is secured. If it is not rich enough to assure a good growth of grass, it should be well fertilized before it is seeded, and the fertilizer worked carefully into the soil. Seeding should be done when the wind is quiet, and great care should be taken to have it sowed evenly. One pound of lawn grass seed will sow a plot ten by twenty feet, or two hundred square feet. Immediately after seeding, the ground seeded should be thoroughly soaked with water, and the soil should be kept moist until the grass is well rooted. A light surface sprinkling of the soil is not beneficial. The lawn should be watered when ever it appears that the surface is drying. There is no use of sowing the seed unless the ground is kept in a condition moist enough so that the grass can thrive. Lawns should be started now. The warmer the weather the more difficult it is to succeed. All seed should be put out mixtures of grass seed which they recommend. The committee suggests that white clover be added to the seed if it is not already a part of the mixture purchased.

Democrats and Insurgents
Force Through Measure

Washington, May 3.—Tax returns were today open to public inspection in the Senate as the Republican insurgents and Democrats combined in the first major attack on the revenue bill.

The publicity proposal was bitterly fought by Republican organization leaders who were willing, however, to agree to inspection of the returns by certain congressional committees, as voted by the house and approved by the finance committee.

Disposing a series of other proposals in an eight hour session, the senate cleared the way for passage today of the content on the income tax schedule, the heart of the bill.

Other action taken included: Rejection of the finance committee amendment imposing a ten percent on radio sets, 40 to 13. Rejection of a treasury department proposal to limit deductions in relation to income from tax exempt securities, 37 to 36.

Measure Probably to be Referred to Departments Before Any Action

Washington, May 3.—While the bonus bill was passing through various mechanical processes today at the capital, preparatory to its transmission to the White House, President Coolidge had an engagement with a delegation which came here to express the opposition of the Ex-Servicemen Bureau for advice upon whether the bonus bill would reach the President before Monday is not certain. Final congressional action was taken on it yesterday with adoption by the House of the conference report but the processes of engrossing and signatures by the presiding officers of the Senate and House were left until today. In any event, it will not come before Mr. Coolidge for action until late next week, as it will be sent to the Treasury department and probably to the Veterans' Bureau for advice upon being received at the White House.

OFFERS FINE
HOME FOR BOY

A fine home is offered an unusual boy by a resident of Washington, D. C., who has written Miss Henrietta J. Lund, director children's bureau, board of administration. The writer said for a year or more he had been endeavoring to find a boy of seven or eight "who has promised heredity and the mental capacity to profit by somewhat unusual educational advantages."

The children's bureau may not be able to suggest a boy for Miss Lund said, its business is rather to deal with the unusual child—the boy that is defective, dependent or neglected. Fortunately, she added, many homes that open up to an unfortunate child do not ask as perfect qualifications as the Washington man. However, she said, the bureau recognizes the need of a careful study of the home and the child to determine the availability of one to the other.

COOLIDGE FOR EXCLUSION OF
ALL ASIATICS

President Informs Callers That He Sanctions Action Taken By Congress

VIEWS ARE EXPLAINED

Washington, May 3.—President Coolidge announced to White House callers his indorsements of the proposal that immigrants ineligible to citizenship be excluded from the United States.

Efforts to obtain alteration of the immigration bill's provision in this respect were explained by spokesmen for the president as being designed merely to phrase the new policy in the most courteous manner possible. White House officials were said to view as certain the eventual enactment of a clause of exclusion into law and desired only that it give the least possible offense to friendly nations.

Information still was upheld, however, both at the executive offices and at the capital as to what steps were contemplated by the state department, if congress approved the suggestion that exclusion be deferred for a period after the other sections of the bill are in operation. House and Senate conferees took up the Japanese provisions as the first of the major items in controversy, but when adjournment was taken after nearly five hours of unbroken discussion, Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, head of the senate delegation, would only say that "no decision had been reached."

The conference was understood to have determined informally, however, that its authority under the established procedure of both houses would extend to a recommendation for material changes in the exclusion clauses, because of the constant amendment making them effective immediately, whereas the house bill set the operative date at July 1. Presidents were noted for the statement that this change was sufficient to throw the whole subject open.

Result Held in Doubt
Consideration of exclusion will be resumed by the conferees today with an all day and possibly night session in view. Senator Reed's program still being to submit a report early next week.

Considerable doubt was expressed among senators today whether the conference would accede to the president's program, and more doubt it would be ratified by the senate if presented in a report.

PIKE CASE IS DISMISSED

The Case Against State Is Dismissed

St. Paul, May 3.—The case of Frederick A. Pike against the State of North Dakota doing business as the Bank of North Dakota came to an abrupt end in district court here late yesterday, Judge J. W. Roemer dismissing the action on the ground that Pike should have brought his suit against the Industrial Commission instead of against the Bank for the $15,000 he demanded for legal services.

The court held that the meeting in a Bismarck hotel at which Lynn J. Frazier, former Governor, and J. K. Hagan, former Commissioner of Agriculture, hired Mr. Pike and William Lemke as special attorneys for the state, was not a regular or official meeting of the Industrial Commission, due to the absence of William Langer, then Attorney-General, and, therefore, its act was invalid.

Unique Situation Faced By Argentine President

Buenos Aires, Argentina, May 3.—President DeAlvaraz was faced today with the alternative of postponing application of the new pension law or accepting the consequences of a nation-wide strike, unique probably in the history of any country for the reason that it is virtually a protest from both capital and labor against what it terms an absurdity of legislation.

The law provides for the deduction of 5 percent from salaries to be applied to a pension fund, the employers contributing a like amount. Strikes and lockouts have already begun in various cities and Rosario, several persons are reported to have been wounded in a clash between strikers and police.

Baring is thin, dapper, 39. His wife is plump, matronly, 46. They were married 11 years ago, and the difference in their ages seems to have widened ever since.

"Most of their married life," says a friend of the family, "has been a series of suspicions, growing out of Mrs. Baring's fear that her husband was paying too much attention to other women."

"Frequent quarrels led to estrangement and separation. But this (Continued on page 6)

HOW TO MAKE FINE LAWN AT HOME IS TOLD

Garden Committee of Association of Commerce Gives Advice to Citizens

RESULTS OF ITS STUDY

How best to start a lawn, what to plant and when, and how to take care of it—these are some things the Garden Committee of the Association of Commerce hopes to tell people of the city, giving them the results of the study made by members of the committee.

The first statement, herewith, tells about lawns, and other recommendations will be made from time to time.

"Since the board of city commissioners has assured the residents of Bismarck that there will be reduction in the rate charged for water used on lawns and gardens, there should be an increased interest in beautifying the lawns, boulevards and gardens of the city," says a statement by the committee.

"It will be impossible to make Bismarck a 'City Beautiful' unless the citizens generally take an interest in beautifying their home grounds and boulevards," the committee statement added. Members of the garden committee are: Mrs. O. J. St. Onge, Mrs. F. L. Conklin, H. S. Dobler, Burr Finney, Dr. R. S. Towne and C. L. Young, chairman. The committee's statement on lawns follows:

LAWNS: The first essential in giving the home a proper setting is a properly made and well-kept lawn. This cannot be secured in a haphazard way. The soil must be thoroughly prepared before it is seeded. Every foot of earth must be plowed, or spaded. The soil then should be well pulverized and leveled until a perfect grade is secured. If it is not rich enough to assure a good growth of grass, it should be well fertilized before it is seeded, and the fertilizer worked carefully into the soil. Seeding should be done when the wind is quiet, and great care should be taken to have it sowed evenly. One pound of lawn grass seed will sow a plot ten by twenty feet, or two hundred square feet.

After seeding, the ground should be watered, and the soil should be kept moist until the grass is well rooted. A light surface sprinkling of the soil is not beneficial. The lawn should be watered when ever it appears that the surface is drying. There is no use of sowing the seed unless the ground is kept in a condition moist enough so that the grass can thrive. Lawns should be started now. The warmer the weather the more difficult it is to succeed. All seed houses put out mixtures of grass seed which they recommend. The committee suggests that white clover be added to the seed if it is not already a part of the mixture purchased.

ASKS $40,000 OF N. P. ROAD FOR DAMAGES

Widow of Brakeman Killed on September 16 Alleges Negligence in Suit

Moorhead, Minn., May 3.—The Northern Pacific Railroad today was made defendant in a $40,000 damage suit which was instituted by Mary McKinstry, widow of Chauncey McKinstry, brakeman, who was killed early on the morning of September 16 last while on duty between Dilworth and Jamestown.

Criminal negligence on the part of the road and violation of federal laws governing railroads engaged in interstate traffic is alleged. The suit is brought in Clay County, Minnesota courts, since the road operates in this country. No one is known to have seen the accident, McKinstry not being missed from the train until two hours after the accident and his body not being found for hours afterward. Three trains are believed to have passed over his body before it was found.

NORBECK PLANS TO FORCE FARM BILL TO FRONT

Would Attach McNary-Haugen Measure as "Rider" to Tax Bill For This Purpose

POSITION OF HOUSE

Do Not Want to Push This Measure Ahead of Other Pending Legislation

Washington, May 3.—The McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, which has been belabored in committee for the major part of this session of Congress, was thrown today into the ring along with other major measures the leaders are attempting to dispose of.

Already reported out by the house agriculture committee, the measure has been brought sharply to the front in the Senate by the announcement of Senator Norbeck, Republican, South Dakota, that he would offer it as an amendment to the tax bill to see "what the Senate thinks of the farmers of the country."

House leaders have indicated an unwillingness to give any farm aid measures right of way until advised regarding the position of President Coolidge, and Chairman Haugen of the House agriculture committee had an appointment with President Coolidge today to discuss this and other agriculture proposals.

The McNary-Haugen bill has the approval of the agriculture department, officials of which collaborated in drafting it.

The formal report of the house committee contends that America cannot have "industrial prosperity much longer with growing agricultural poverty." The report quotes the secretary of agriculture as saying that one out of every four farms in the fifteen corn and wheat states is bankrupt.

The measure, which would create a $200,000,000 grain export corporation with the power to borrow twice the amount, the report asserted, addressed itself to the disparity in purchasing power of farm products, the chief of which corn, wheat, beef and pork, are "only about seventy percent of the prewar average, while the price index of non-agricultural commodities stands at 168 percent."

GRAIN FUTURES REPORT MADE

Washington, May 3.—The grain futures administration, in its report to the Senate on future wheat trading, declared today that transactions in futures on the Chicago Board of Trade last year amounted to 8,572,111,000 bushels, counting one side of each transaction, or a daily average of about 28,500,000 bushels.

WOULD OPEN TAX RETURNS

Democrats and Insurgents Force Through Measure

Washington, May 3.—Tax returns were to be made public in a session yesterday by the senate as Republican insurgents and Democrats combined in the first major attack on the revenue bill.

The publicity proposal was bitterly fought by Republican organization leaders, who were willing, however, to agree to inspection of the returns by certain congressional committees, as voted by the house and approved by the finance committee.

Disposing of a series of other proposals in a six-hour session, the senate cleared the way for opening today of the contest on the income tax schedule, the heart of the bill.

Other action taken included: Rejection of the finance committee amendment imposing a ten percent on radio sets, 40 to 33. Rejection of a treasury department proposal to limit deductions in relation to income from tax exempt securities, 37 to 36.

CAPITAL AND LABOR STRIKE

Unique Situation Faced By Argentine President

Buenos Aires, Argentina, May 3.—President DeAlvear was faced today with the alternative of postponing application of the new pension law or accepting the consequences of a nation-wide strike, unique probably in the history of any country for the reason that it is virtually a protest from both capital and labor against what it terms an absurdity of legislation.

The law provides for the deduction of 5 percent from salaries to be applied to a pension fund, the employers contributing a like amount. Strikes and lockouts have already begun in various cities and Rosario, several persons are reported to have been wounded in a clash between strikers and police.

PURCHASE OF U. S. ARMS BY CUBA SOUGHT

Country Would Obtain From Facing Condition of Violence, Surplus War Stock

PLENTY IS ON HAND

Denial Made From Cuba That Revolution Is Fostered by Patriots' Association

REPORTS FIGHTING
Havana, Cuba, May 3.—Details of two engagements yesterday near Cienfuegos, between forces of government rebel troops and patriots, which he had other news which he "cannot give" were sent to the newspaper La Tropa today by its correspondent at Cienfuegos.

Washington, May 3.—The Cuban government, facing a "condition of violence," in Santa Clara province, caused by revolutionists, has appealed to the Washington government for purchase of a considerable amount of arms and ammunition for use by the Zayas forces against the revolutionists.

The appeal today was approved by the state department and forwarded to the War Department where it is regarded as certain that the arms and ammunition asked for will be made available to Cuban authorities without delay.

In the absence of Secretary Weeks, war department officials declined to reveal the amount of munitions asked for, but indicated there would be no trouble in filling the orders from the supply of excess war supplies held by the army.

DENIES REPORT

Havana, Cuba, May 3.—The outbreak in Santa Clara province was not ordered by General Carlos Garcia Velez, president of the Veterans and Patriots Association and appears to be the work of impatient members of the organization who could not longer be held in leash, it was declared today by Margo Garcia Velez, brother of General Velez.

COOLIDGE NOT TO GIVE WORD ON BONUS SOON

Measure Probably to be Referred to Departments Before Any Action

Washington, May 3.—While the bonus bill was passing through various mechanical processes today at the capital, preparatory to its transmission to the White House, President Coolidge had an engagement with a delegation which came here to express the opposition of the Ex-Servicemen's Anti-Bonus League.

Whether the bonus bill would reach the President before Monday is not certain. Final congressional action was taken on it yesterday with adoption by the House of the conference report but the processes of engrossing and signatures by the presiding officer of the Senate and House were left until today. In any event, it will not come before Mr. Coolidge for action until late next week, as it will be sent to the Treasury department and probably to the Veterans Bureau for advice upon being received at the White House.

OFFERS FINE HOME FOR BOY

A fine home is offered an unusual boy by a resident of Washington, D. C., who has written Miss Henrietta J. Lund, director children's bureau, board of administration. The writer said for a year or more he had been endeavoring to find a boy of seven or eight who has promised hereditary and the mental capacity to profit by somewhat unusual educational advantages.

The children's bureau may not be able to suggest a boy for Miss Lund said, its business is rather to deal with the unusual child—the boy that is defective, dependent or neglected. Fortunately, she added, many homes that open up to an unfortunate child do not ask as perfect qualification as the Washington man. However, she said, the bureau recognizes the need of a careful study of the home and the child to determine the availability of one to the other.

"CLEAN-UP AND PAINT UP" SLOGAN IS SOUNDED IN CITY FOR NEXT WEEK

City Zoned and Pride of Residents of Various Districts To Be Raised in the Campaign—Exact Condition of City To Be Known by Use of Maps, After Inspections Are Made

"Clean-Up and Paint-Up." The annual spring slogan is in vogue again today for next week is "Clean-Up and Paint-Up Week" in Bismarck.

Bismarck is known as a clean city. The Association of Commerce committee in charge of the next week's campaign wants it to be cleaner. The city has been divided into zones, and the committee is going to find out, it says, just what part of town has the most pride and will do most toward making Bismarck a city beautiful. Also it is going to show on the map where the bad spots are.

The city is zoned for the clean-up as follows: Zone No. 1, west of Second street, north of N. P. tracks, in charge T. R. Atkinson; Zone No. 2, Second street to Seventh, north N. P. tracks, in charge W. L. Niesle; Zone No. 3, Seventh to Twelfth streets, north N. P. tracks, in charge Mrs. Carl Nelson; Zone No. 4, east of Twelfth street, in charge Mrs. Richard Penwarden and F. E. Hedden; Zone No. 5, west of Ninth street south, south of N. P. tracks, in charge J. P. Jackson; Zone No. 6, east of Ninth street south, south of N. P. tracks.

The zone chairmen are charged with locating the bad spots and reporting to the general committee, composed of T. R. Atkinson, N. E. Hedden, F. E. Hedden, J. P. Jackson, J. J. MacLeod, Mrs. Carl Nelson, Mrs. Richard Penwarden, Mrs. Morris Zvorist.

It is planned, in addition to the big week next week, to have the city inspected and the inspection recorded each month, on a city map. Conditions will be designated by different colored tacks. The map will be placed in a downtown window, so citizens of various zones can see how they stand.

According to A. F. Bradley, secretary of the Association of Commerce, Duluth and other cities of Minnesota, and Fargo, North Dakota, have used the methods used in the Bismarck clean-up campaign last year, because of the reputation of the city for cleanliness and the success on the campaign last year.

COOLIDGE FOR EXCLUSION OF ALL ASIATICS

President Informs Callers That He Sanctions Action Taken By Congress

VIEWS ARE EXPLAINED

Washington, May 3.—President Coolidge announced to White House callers his indorsements of the proposal that immigrants ineligible to citizenship be excluded from the United States.

Efforts to obtain alteration of the immigration bill's provision in this respect were explained by spokesmen for the president as being designed merely to phrase the new policy in the most courteous manner possible. White House officials were said to view as certain the eventual enactment of a clause of exclusion into law and desired only that it give the least possible offense to friendly nations.

Confer on Immigration
Information still was upheld, however, both at the executive offices and at the capital as to what steps were contemplated by the state department, if congress approved the suggestion that exclusion be deferred for a period after the other sections of the bill are in operation. House and senate conferees took up the Japanese provisions as the first of the major items in controversy, but when adjournment was taken after nearly five hours of unbroken discussion, Senator Reid, Republican, Pennsylvania, said of the senate delegation, "no decision had been reached."

The conference was understood to have determined informally, however, that its authority under the established procedure of both houses would extend to a recommendation of amendment making them effective immediately, whereas the house bill set the operative date at July 1. Precedents were noted for the statement that this change was sufficient to throw the whole subject open.

Result in Doubt
Consideration of exclusion will be resumed by the conferees today with an all day and possibly night session in view, Senator Reed's program still being to submit a report early next week.

Considerable doubt was expressed among senators today whether the conference would accede to the president's program, and more doubt it would be ratified by the senate if presented in a report.

MAJOR MARTIN, MECHANICIAN, BEING SOUGHT

Search For Major Martin, Round World Leader, Being Extended

PASSED ONE POINT

Searchers Learn He Was Seen Near Cannery—Fear Disaster Overtook Him

TO USE DOG TEAMS
False Pass, Alaska, May 3.—(By the A. P.)—A party with dog teams will go today from Chignik, Alaska, to the north side of the Alaska peninsula to search for Major Frederick L. Martin, missing Globe flyer, along the Bering sea.

The weather early this morning promised warmer, and it was believed that three other aviators who were at Santa Monica, California, May 17 with Major Martin, will depart soon from Dutch Harbor, 180 miles west of False Pass.

Major Martin, who took the air at Chignik, Wednesday, with his mechanic staff-sergeant, Alva L. Harvey, to fly to Dutch Harbor, 400 miles southwest of Chignik, was believed to have flown over a portage across the peninsula to its north side.

Major Martin, who took the air at Chignik, Wednesday, with his mechanic staff-sergeant, Alva L. Harvey, to fly to Dutch Harbor, 400 miles southwest of Chignik, was believed to have flown over a portage across the peninsula to its north side.

Belief that Major Martin was forced down by a strong gale which arose shortly after he departed from Chignik toward the Bering Sea resulted in orders being broadcast for vessels to "comb" immediately the Bering seashore line from Dutch Harbor, Unalakleet, to Unashashik, north of Chignik.

The overland searching party definitely learned that Major Martin and his staff sergeant Alva Harvey passed over the Alaska Packers cannery at Chignik Lagoon, just outside of Chignik, in the direction of Portage Bay, just north of the Shumagin Islands, was reported by an overland searching party when it returned here tonight.

At the time of the departure, a stiff northwest gale sprang up and it started snowing shortly after the airplane was out of sight from Chignik.

It was pointed out that if Major Martin had been forced down before he reached Portage Bay the overland party would have located him. The members of the party also declared that if the American commander of the aerial squadron encircling the globe had landed in Portage Bay without anchoring the plane, the machine would have been blown out to sea.

The latest information received by the searching party which covered the Portage Bay territory indicates that Major Martin might have been forced to the Bering Sea side. Orders were broadcast to all wireless stations to issue calls for any vessels equipped with radio in the Bering Sea to start the hunt for the missing aviator along the southern coast line.

COMPASSION CONFIDENT
Washington, May 3.—Comrades at Dutch Harbor, Alaska, of Major Martin, missing commander of the army around the world flight expedition, believed Martin and his companions are safe and will be located.

A message from Lieut. Lowell Smith, senior officer with the planes at Dutch Harbor, received today by Major-General Patrick, chief of the Air Service, declared Martin and Sergeant Harvey had matches and emergency rations with them sufficient for several weeks.

"We believe Martin is safe and will soon be located," Lieut. Smith's telegram said.

The message said the weather was good there yesterday, which helped in the search. No ship was expected to reach Dutch Harbor until Friday, it said, from the "most likely location of the missing flyers. It was pointed out that "there are numerous harbors for possible refuge."

FORMER MANDAN GIRL WIFE OF LEON ERROL

Mrs. Leon Errol, wife of the comedian who appeared in Bismarck last night in the musical comedy "Sally" is a former resident of Mandan, having grown up in that city. As Miss Bertha Nelson (Martin) she began her dance career and after entering the professional dance stage her rise is said to have been rapid. She appeared with her husband in his various performances until a few years ago when she met with an accident in which she suffered a fractured hip, which caused her to give up her dance career. She travels with Mr. Errol.

Smoking either pipes or cigars after meals is now regarded by some doctors as very beneficial.

Clean Up and Paint UP is a timely slogan but not more so than
Build Up and Fix Up

IT IS GOOD COMMON SENSE to make all necessary repairs before you go to the expense of painting. The fence may be damaged. You may need new front or back steps to the house. Very often there are split sidings on the wall which should be replaced or a new floor for the porch is needed. As a rule the appearance of an old house can be improved and modernized with very little expense. For instance; by adding a small dormer, or, in some cases, a "lift" or small gable, a certain amount of dignity and special distinction can be attained. There is pleasure, a pride in owning a home just a little different from the general run. Individuality is what you want. Every home can have this by proper planning, or, later thru alterations. Think these things over carefully before you start the painter on the job.

Our yard is well stocked with highest quality of all grades of lumber and millwork. When you plan on any repairs, improvements or a new building let us estimate on the material and, if you wish, get you in touch with a reliable carpenter. You'll appreciate the service as well as our reasonable prices.

SCHOOLS HERE PRESENT ARBOR DAY PROGRAMS

Importance of Day Is Impressed Upon Them By Many Speakers in Schools

Arbor Day was fittingly observed in the public schools of this city yesterday by specially prepared programs. At the high school, Miss Minnie J. Nelson, state superintendent of schools, spoke on the various things that are now taken into consideration in the observance of Arbor Day. The first Arbor day was set up at the planting of trees and shrubbery, but now the preservation of birds and all forms of wild life have been included in the observance of our Arbor Day.

Miss Betty Palmer, spoke at the Waehner and Will schools, on the subject of "Birds" and their preservation. She explained how the first Bird Day had been celebrated nationally, May, 1924. She pointed out to the children how we were benefited by the birds in four different ways. The first, they bring happiness to us and illustrated this by two pictures which she exhibited to the children. These were Britton's, "Song of the Lark," and Gluck's "Spring Song," both of which were sung by the children. She touched briefly on the other way in which we were helped by birds, namely the eating of worms and insects and weed seeds. She further told the children how they might help the birds by the feeding and watching of them and in helping them to build nests and in the protection of them.

Speaks At Roosevelt School
Mrs. Alfred Zuger spoke to the seniors at the Roosevelt school this afternoon on the value of the preservation of plants, shrubs and trees which grow to be a home time to grow. Her talk was greatly appreciated by the children and the grade-school children who were the target of her remarks.

Commissioner of Agriculture J. A. Kitchen spoke at the William Moore and Rahmolt school this morning. He pointed out in the course of his talk to the children that all great men coming from our state had been lovers of a tree, especially the post office, and how many of them had planted trees which were a living memorial to them today. Those whom he mentioned particularly were James W. Foley and Frederick Roosevelt who lived at Medora and were known personally by the speaker. His talk at the two schools was greatly enjoyed by both student and teachers.

Will Speak Monday
Attorney C. E. Young will address the pupils of St. Mary's Academy Monday morning at 9:30, on the subject of "Arbor Day and the Importance of Trees." His talk was scheduled for today but for some conflict in programs it was decided to hold the address until Monday. Work in Gustav Park was right on when Arbor Day and all of the planting will be completed during the next week.

Girls' Week will be observed nationally this coming week and local committee has been well for some time.

Formulating plans for further the plan for a grand picnic each month. All civic organizations are co-operating to make this a most successful venture.

FAMILIES TO BE INCLUDED IN IMMIGRATION

Chicago, May 3.—Waves of husbands and unmarried minor children of resident citizens would be admitted to the United States without being counted in the immigration quota of their country in the report of the Immigration committee of the U. S. department of commerce, whose recommendations are to be made at its convention here May 8.

The test of selection would permit entrance to those qualified mentally, morally and physically, regardless of race and nationality. The report says the present quota law after long modification should be reenacted for a definite term of years. During this time it proposes that a federal board make a study of the effects of the immigration law both in the United States and abroad.

This commission also should have power to devise and supervise a method of selective immigration and administration of the law, however, remaining in the immigration service as at present and to make recommendations to the President for raising or lowering the quota within to be fixed by congress, the report reads.

The committee believes continues the report "the present base year of 1920 should be retained during the brief period of the quota law's extension both in order that experience during the last three years may be comparable with that during the next three to five years, and in order to avoid raising the troublesome question of discrimination."

ST. PAUL LIVESTOCK
South St. May 3.—After a slump early in the week hog prices recovered practically all of last week's losses and today's market was about steady with two weeks ago and 15 cents over last Friday, according to the weekly review of the United States Department of Agriculture today.

Bulk of the better grade of butchers and bacon hogs sold today at $7.10 to $7.15, rough packing hogs $6.25 and feeder pigs at $6.35. With the approach of warm weather there is an increased danger of hog losses to transit, the first warm day last year recording a loss of 257 head.

The arrival of moderately large numbers of cattle in the face of low markets last week resulted in still greater losses. Fat steers suffered the maximum decline, values falling 25 cents or more lower than a week ago. Best steers sold here this week realized $10.00 compared with $10.75 for comparable grades at the recent high time. Bulk of the fat steer and yearlings found an outlet at $7.00 to $8.50 with fat cows and heifer which showed smaller losses than steers at $4.00 to $7.00. Canners reached the $2.25 for the first time in several weeks, the bulk turning at $2.50 with cutters on up to $3.25. Boneless bulls and veal calves declined 25 cents, bulk of the bulk closing at $1.10 to $1.20, with most of the desirable grades of light veal at $1.00 to $1.20.

Only a few sheep or lambs have been sold this week the bulk of the best being bought at Missouri river at $2.50 and shipped direct to local packers. Compared with last week's loss fat lambs are quotable at steady to 25 cents higher, and fat would close about $1.00 lower.

South St. Paul, May 3.—After a slump early in the week hog prices recovered practically all of last week's losses and today's market was about steady with two weeks ago and 15 cents over last Friday, according to the weekly review of the United States Department of Agriculture today.

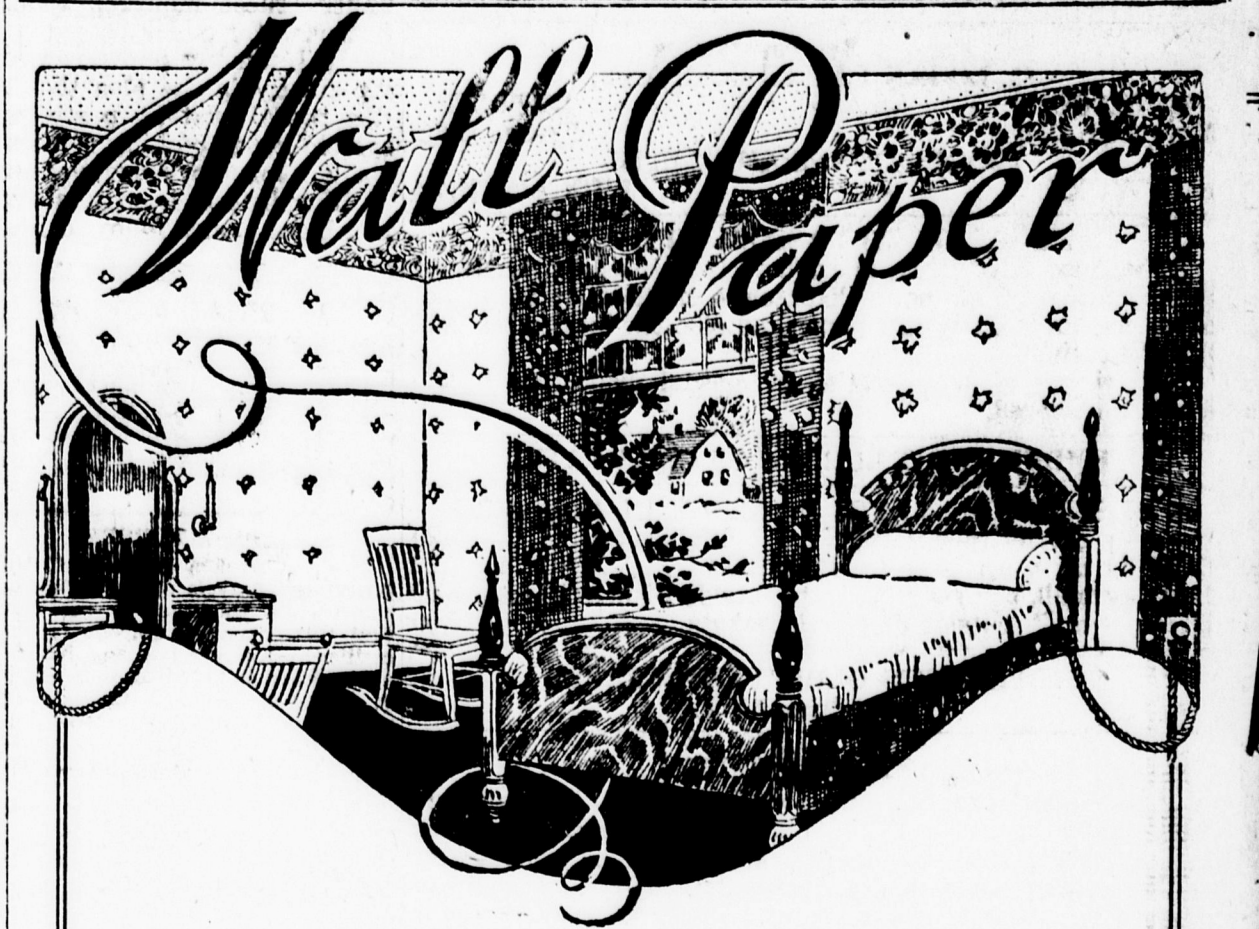

Bulk of the better grade of butcher and bacon hogs sold today at $7.10 to $7.15; rough packing hogs $6.25 and feeder pigs at $6.35. With the approach of warm weather there is an increased danger of hog losses in transit, the first warm day last year recording a loss of 257 head. The arrival of moderately large numbers of cattle last week resulted in still greater losses. Fat steers suffered the maximum decline, values ruling 25 cents or more lower than a week ago. Best steers sold here this week realized $10.00 compared with $10.75 for comparable grades at the recent high time. Bulk of the fat steers and yearlings found an outlet at $7.00 to $8.50 with fat cows and heifers which showed smaller losses than steers at $4.00 to $7.00. Canners reached the $2.25 for the first time in several weeks, the bulk turning at $2.50 with cutters on up to $3.25. Boerama bulls and veal calves declined 25 cents, bulk of the bulls closing at $4.75 to $4.25 with most of the desirable grades of light vealers at $7.50.

Only a few sheep or lambs have been sold this week, the bulk of receipts being bought at Missouri river markets and shipped direct to local packers. Compared with last week's close fat lambs are quotable at steady to 25 cents higher, and fat woolled ewes about $1.00 lower.

IT IS GOOD COMMON SENSE to make all necessary repairs before you go to the expense of painting. The fence may be damaged. You may need new front or back steps to the house. Very often there are split sittings on the wall which should be replaced or a new floor for the porch is needed. As a rule the appearance of an old house can be improved and modernized with very little expense. For instance; by adding a small dormer, or, in some cases, a "lift" or small gable, a certain amount of dignity and special distinction can be attained. There is pleasure, a pride in owning a home just a little different from the general run. Individuality is what you want. Every home can have this by proper planning, or, later thru alterations. Think these things over carefully before you start the painter on the job.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

MATTER OF POLICY
One of the theories upon which Rotary, Kiwanis and Lion clubs operate is not doing any community work through their club organization which can be done better through some established civic agency. That is why members of these various clubs support the school system, the Association of Commerce and other active civic agencies.

There is now before Bismarck the matter of continuing the Boys Welfare Work in Bismarck. There is much that can be said in favor of the present plan and some things that do not make it the most ideal arrangement. Boy's work is one of the chief things sponsored by Rotary. In a city of the size of Bismarck the financial load of this work must be distributed over the whole body of citizens hence the work is not strictly a Rotary activity but one all must share in for the community's good.

But what is everybody's business is usually nobody's business. The welfare work and it should not be confined to boys alone, should be under control of the public school system because a successful administration of welfare work means utilization of the school plant. Divided control between different agencies of this work makes for confusion.

Then again under the old plan intensive work was done during the winter time when a boy's and a girl's program of study and school work is heaviest. If the work is to be continued special stress should be put into the vacation months when all restraint of school life has been removed.

The Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions can best promote this work through the schools. Its membership represents a great majority of the heaviest taxpayers and if they want special teachers to promote boy and girl welfare in Bismarck, the school board should give that service for who after all is paying the bill and what is a school board and a school system for if it fails to respond to legitimate public demands?

Instructors for this work can be secured of proven ability under the control of the school system. Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions can make their contribution in equipment, prizes and general cooperation without placing too heavy a burden on any one class.

If the entire city shares in this work results will be better and community spirit encouraged to make the work a success.

It is doubtful if support under the old plan will be wholehearted enough to secure the best results. Rotary and other clubs can best serve in this instance by bringing pressure to bear upon the board of education to establish a strong department of physical culture and welfare work and see to it that efficiency is secured and maintained rather than in the setting up of another organization which is directly responsible to no one and cannot get the greatest amount of community cooperation as can be had through the school system.

HIS GREAT CHANCE LOST

Those who despair of quick and avenging justice against wrong-doers in high places may turn to the federal court in Indiana where Gov. Warren T. McCray, a few years ago reputed many times a millionaire, was found guilty of use of the mails in furtherance of a scheme to defraud, and was sentenced to 10 years in federal prison by Judge A. B. Anderson.

A year ago McCray emerged from the Hoosier legislative session in triumph. He had put through a program of legislation, embracing many important measures, against great opposition. His power reached its heights. He became involved in financial difficulties, because people to whom he has sold his world famous blooded cattle at war prices were unable to pay for them, one of his banks failed and other manifold interests added to his financial embarrassment. Immediately a group of wealthy bankers came to his assistance and endeavored to finance him until he could recover. But they found his affairs so involved, so much evidence of dishonest methods that they refused to proceed. Both state and federal authorities promptly began sifting these affairs. Within a remarkably short time, in view of the wide extent of his affairs, he was tried in a state court for embezzlement and a jury disagreed. Soon after he was placed on trial in federal court and a few days ago was found guilty.

His sentence of ten years in prison, accompanied by a $10,000 fine, was the maximum. Federal Judge A. B. Anderson has long been known for heavy sentences imposed upon intelligent and powerful men who have failed in a trust, and known as well for leniency with the weak and misguided.

Governor McCray had a great opportunity to win a secure place in the esteem of his people by public service. He failed, and the precision and speed with which the authorities and the courts proceeded to mete out the punishment due any criminal will greatly add to respect for the law in Indiana.

TAMMANY

Charles F. Murphy whatever his personal charms represented politically a type which our system of government fosters and condones. However a questionable model to hold up to tender youth anticipating a public career, Murphy's power had wide ramifications and he takes his place as one of the heroes of Tammany with all of good and all of bad that term implies to the student of American politics. Tweed and Croker his predecessors left no enduring monuments behind, no record of public service, no contribution to the public cause. Murphy joins their rank as poor in service as the world estimates service.

Tammany has since its inception been selfish and corrupt. It built political power to control political spoils. Governors, judges and officials of lesser degree bid for the favor of its powerful organization. Murphy while a spoilsman against whom not as much could be said as against a Tweed or a Croker, typified the Tammany system, yielding of course as necessity demanded to public opinion when his lieutenants became too obstreperous.

Samuel Untermyer defends Tammany as a Democrat and as a member of the organization, declaring that under Tammy Hall New York has had better government than under "these mongrel, sporadic so-called 'reform' administrations," for which no party can be held responsible.

If Tammany had any merit politically or otherwise that lay chiefly in the idea that to accomplish anything in politics there must be party responsibility. The evil of the system lay in making politics merely a means to control the spoils. Jobs not principles engrossed Tammany.

Murphy had energy, pluck and determination. For these attributes many followed him and loved him.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

WILDEST EUROPE

The unprovoked murder of two American travelers in Albania again calls attention to the fact that this corner of Europe is uncivilized. There are many intelligent and educated Albanians, some of them resident in the United States, and they bitterly resent any statement to the effect that stable government in Albania is impossible.

They point out that the Albanians are physically admirable and that their mental capabilities are equal to those of other Europeans.

These are facts not to be denied.

But it is equally undeniable that centuries of isolation have rendered the Albanians a people apart, a people without any adequate conception of civilization, a people still following ancient tribal customs and incapable of comprehending the meaning of a strong central government.

Tribal feuds are of constant occurrence, and tribal massacres are not uncommon and are not punished. In such a land the murder of two foreign travelers is the most natural thing imaginable.

Albania was erected into an independent state after the war of Greece, Bulgaria, Serbia and Montenegro against Turkey.

Serbia had expected to annex Albania, but was prevented by Austrian jealousy. Various questionable schemes were tried in this ungovernable region, including a kingdom under William Wied, a German prince.

During the World War Albania was frankly in a condition of anarchy.

At the end of the World War Italy played the role which Austria had played after the Balkan war, and again Albania was given meaningless independence.

This time, however, Italy assumed a certain inhibitive responsibility, doubtless looking forward to eventual annexation of the country.

The Albanians of education are wholly justified in protesting against annexation to Yugoslavia, for the Albanians have nothing in common with the Yugoslavs.

They have even less in common with the Italians.

But it seems unavoidable that some nation must soon take charge.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

WHAT ABOUT THE PUBLIC?

While the Railroad Labor Board is far from having achieved complete success in adjusting disputes, it is certainly a better instrument for that purpose than the carefully controlled machinery which the railroad unions have established. Congress set up in its place.

The union scheme, set forth in the Barkley bill, is to organize adjustment boards made up of representatives of the national unions and of the railroads. When these fail to effect settlements, a board of mediation is provided, which may try its hand at reaching a solution.

This is obviously a fine scheme for the unions, if for no one else. It completely ignores the public, the railroad employees who are not affiliated with national unions, but who are thus to be forced into relations they disapprove. It is aimed to put an end to the "company unions." And, perhaps worst of all, it provides no recognition whatever for the public, the great third party in every dispute that threatens to tie up the railroads, to impair their service in any way, or to make it more costly through higher rates.

The public pays the bills. It furnishes the traffic. It grants the franchises to operate. It delegates the privileges and responsibilities of common carriers to the roads. It protects the rights and wages of the employees.

Yet the rail unions propose to slam the door in the public's face when there is a dispute to settle. They propose to make it an affair of merely the men and the roads, with no interference tolerated from the public whose interest is paramount to every other interest concerned.

And the rail unions have succeeded by threats of vengeance in November in frightening a hundred and fifty members of the House to petition for taking the Barkley bill away from the Interstate Commerce Committee, where hearings were to have been held, and bringing it directly on the floor of the House for summary action.

Here we have another example of the power of compact energetic groups to force action under the present block system and the failure of party responsibility. The parties used to represent the public, to fight for its rights and privileges. What is there now to ensure the public's cause, to defend it from the onslaughts of the minorities?—Minneapolis Journal.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

THE ABSENT-MINDED FISHERMAN

"Let's go to see the fisherman who found the funny bottle," said Nick. "Doesn't he live in Once-Upon-a-Time Land?"

"Right-o!" said Mister Muggs. So they all climbed into the little car and away they went over seven times seven frog-ponds and seven times seven minnow-brooks until at last they came to a great, great big ocean.

And there was the fisherman's cottage. And sitting in a little boat was the fisherman himself, trying to catch a herring for his dinner. When he saw that he had company, he rowed his little boat to shore.

"We came to see your queer bottle!" said Nick.

"What queer bottle?" asked the fisherman in surprise.

"The one you fished out of the water one time," said Nick. "It had a bad giant in it, and when you took the cork out he came out, too, like smoke. That's what the story said."

"By the great horn spoon!" cried the fisherman. "So it did! Only it all happened a long ago I had forgotten about it. I only got that bad fellow back in the bottle by fooling him. I put the bottle away in a cupboard and I've kept it ever since. I plumb forgot I had it."

The fisherman hauled it down, but in doing so the stopper fell out and as quick as a flash a thin stream of smoke started to come out. It soon grew to an enormous size, floating up to the ceiling, and a giant appeared.

"Hello, there, everybody," he cried. "Where am I? I must have been asleep!"

"You've been asleep for years 'n' years," said Nick.

"Oh, I remember," said the big fellow. "And you played a trick on me to get me back in the bottle. Well, that won't happen again for I'm too smart for you. The first thing I'm going to do is to swallow the sea so you can't catch any more fish. And the second thing is—"

But he didn't finish for just then a marvelous thing happened.

Mr. Muggs opened two windows and the wind rushed in at one window and blew the bottle giant out of the other, because he was only smoke, anyway—or something like it.

"Oo-oo-oo! I want back in my bottle!" they heard him say away off in the distance.

But it was too late. He was gone for good.

"Well, I guess I'll sleep better now," said the fisherman. "It isn't very comfortable to have a giant 'round the house!"

"Why, I thought you said you had forgotten about him!" cried Mister Muggs.

"Well, I guess I forgot that I had forgotten," said the fisherman. "O, but I am getting absent-minded. Do you know whether I caught a herring or not when I went fishing?"

"No, you didn't," said Nancy. "There were none in the boat."

"Well, then, if you'll excuse me," said the fisherman. "I'll go and get one for my supper. I do feel better now to have a giant in the house. Or was it a dwarf? I forgot already."

"Good-by!" called the visitors as they rode away.

The Tangle

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO LESLIE PRESCOTT, CARE OF THE SECRET DRAWER.

Later in the evening we discussed my husband and I, Sally Atherton a little.

"I confess," said Jack, "that I don't understand that woman at all."

"Why do you call her 'that woman,' Jack? You know a man never puts the prefix of 'that' before 'woman' that the woman in question does not either interest or annoy him very much."

"Sally Atherton does not annoy me," said Jack slowly. "I don't understand her, though, at all."

"You saw her when she came to the office this morning. She had just, as you know, buried her husband, and yet there was no awkward mark of grief about her. She was wearing the same light gray tweed suit and sport hat that she has worn ever since she came to work for me."

"I tried to offer her some condolence, but she put me off in an absolutely casual way, saying: 'Some day I will tell you all about my married life, if you want to hear it.' Just now we must get off these plans to the hoisery people and she went on working as though she had been talking about the most unimportant matter. In fact, just before I went out to luncheon I heard her humming to herself."

"Did you know how very well, Leslie? Did she think she was in love when she married her husband? To me, at times, for a second or two I think I find the most feminine woman I have ever known; then she becomes a purely business automaton."

"She is very interesting. She, too, is one of the new phases of 'your sex.'"

"Sally always was queer, Jack," I observed. "You see she had to earn her living early. Her father died when she was 14 years old, and she had to work immediately, not only to take care of herself, but to help her mother who was quite an invalid."

"For some reason, Jack, that you may know better than I, being a man, men have always admired Sally Atherton greatly. From the time she was 16 until she was 20 and married Sam, she kept losing positions because she resented the unwelcome attention of 'some' man higher-up in the office. Just what it is about her that invites this, I do not know."

"She is — is — darned — adorable. These words came from Jack as though they were pulled out of him against his will."

"I believe that is what every man has thought Jack, that has come within the radius of Sally Atherton's smile. Yet she is not pretty. She doesn't dress particularly well. What is it?"

"I don't know," he answered. "I think perhaps it is because she piques your curiosity, and then she seems to be so very well able to take care of herself under all circumstances. Ordinarily that coqueness in a woman is annoying to a man, but in Sally Atherton it makes you want to demonstrate to her that she is wrong."

SANER TELLS OF NEED OF BETTER PUBLIC SPIRIT

Pinehurst, N. C., May 3.—A plea to lift America "above" the slough of mercenary politics and "carry it steadily forward as a government of liberty under the law," was urged upon lawyers attending the convention of the North Carolina Bar Association in an address tonight by Robert E. L. Saner, of Dallas, president of the American Bar Association.

The call for active, intelligent and unselfish public service was never more insistent than today, Mr. Saner asserted, who said the traditions of the flag and the men who launched the government joined in admonishing "us to obey this call."

"The only forces that can preserve our republic are men with convictions and the courage of their convictions," he continued. "My plea is that a modicum of the same sort of courage that actuated our fathers shall be manifested not only by public officials but by the great mass of private citizens and the ranks of our citizenship. What we must have is an active exercise of the duties of citizenship by men who stand outside of party or class, whose sole motive and objective is the public weal, and who have the courage to tear a question open and let the light through it. We must have men who stand for the right, for justice, for liberty under the law, for government under the Constitution, and who will carry our republic forward toward the fulfillment of its high mission as a leader and exemplar for the emulation and inspiration of all the nations of the earth."

The essays will be judged in each state, and the grand national prize is a free trip to Washington. There also will be a state prize.

IN A BOY'S POCKETS

BY ALBERT APPLÉ

The pockets of small boys yield peculiar collections. Maybe you read about nine-year-old Arthur Parker, knocked down and run over by a taxi. In his pockets they found 5 tops, 73 brass buttons, 60 marbles, 2 oranges, a wooden cigarette holder, a pair of clappers, 10 cigarets, a mouth organ and a jew's-harp.

This will not surprise the mother of any healthy lad with normal tendencies. If there's anything amazing about Arthur's pockets, it's that the contents didn't include a toad, a couple of white rats, a quart of bright pebbles and several radio sets.

The small boy is close to the savage state. His mania for collecting odds and ends of "junk" is inherited from the savage, who adorns himself with glass beads, feathers, etc. The instinct of accumulation asserts itself in the lowest forms of human life. Civilization makes it more intense.

This accumulative instinct separates us from the animals. Crows and rats sometimes gather and hide queer collections. But as a rule the animal accumulates only what is actually needed to sustain life.

The squirrel works scientifically, hoarding nuts but not any more than will be needed during the winter. The ant has his storehouse of food. So does the bee. But the purpose of their accumulation is to keep them alive when food is scarce.

Man alone tries to accumulate more than he needs.

The way people fight for money, you'd think they expected to be here on earth for at least several thousand years. Does any of them ever get enough? Not so you can notice.

The savage with his glass beads, the boy with pockets crammed full of trash, the rich man struggling to acquire wealth that he no longer needs—all three have much in common.

It is wise and necessary to provide for emergency, old age and a "better chance" for the children. But when we pass a certain point in accumulating the quest becomes an obsession and life loses its color.

A large part of the misery, friction, hatred and ill health of life is due, directly to the mania for acquiring more wealth than we need. Life can be a very happy adventure and journey, if we enjoy ourselves as we go along instead of trying to hog everything in sight.

Thrift, carried to extremes, is a savage vice.

For the man of average income, the savings account serves as the foundation of his estate. MATTER OF POLICY
One of the theories upon which Rotary, Kiwanis and Lion clubs operate is not doing any community work through their club organization which can be done better through some established civic agency. That is why members of these various clubs support the school system, the Association of Commerce and other active civic agencies.
There is now before Bismarck the matter of continuing the Boys Welfare Work in Bismarck. There is much that can be said in favor of the present plan and some things that do not make it the most ideal arrangement. Boy's work is one of the chief things sponsored by Rotary. In a city of the size of Bismarck the financial load of this work must be distributed over the whole body of citizens hence the work is not strictly a Rotary activity but one all must share in for the community's good.
But what is everybody's business is usually nobody's business. The welfare work and it should not be confined to boys alone, should be under control of the public school system because a successful administration of welfare work means utilization of the school plant. Divided control between different agencies of this work makes for confusion.
Then again under the old plan intensive work was done during the winter time when a boy's and a girl's program of study and school work is heaviest. If the work is to be continued special stress should be put into the vacation months when all restraint of school life has been removed.
The Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions can best promote this work through the schools. Its membership represents a great majority of the heaviest taxpayers and if they want special teachers to promote boy and girl welfare in Bismarck, the school board should give that service for which after all is paying the bill and what is a school board and a school system for if it fails to respond to legitimate public demands?
Instructors for this work can be secured of proven ability under the control of the school system. Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions can make their contribution in equipment, prizes and general cooperation without placing too heavy a burden on any one class.
If the entire city shares in this work results will be better and community spirit encouraged to make the work a success.
It is doubtful if support under the old plan will be wholehearted enough to secure the best results. Rotary and other clubs can best serve in this instance by bringing pressure to bear upon the board of education to establish a strong department of physical culture and welfare work and see to it that efficiency is secured and maintained rather than in the setting up of another organization which is directly responsible to no one and cannot get the greatest amount of community cooperation as can be had through the school system.

HIS GREAT CHANCE LOST
Those who despair of quick and avenging justice against wrong-doers in high places may turn to the federal court in Indiana where Gov. Warren T. McCray, a few years ago reputed many times a millionaire, was found guilty of use of the mails in furtherance of a scheme to defraud, and was sentenced to 10 years in federal prison by Judge A. B. Anderson.
A year ago McCray emerged from the Hoosier legislative session in triumph. He had put through a program of legislation, embracing many important measures, against great opposition. His power reached its heights. He became involved in financial difficulties, because people to whom he has sold his world famous blooded cattle at war prices were unable to pay for them, one of his banks failed and other manifold interests added to his financial embarrassment. Immediately a group of wealthy bankers came to his assistance and endeavored to finance him until he could recover. But they found his affairs so involved, so much evidence of dishonest methods that they refused to proceed. Both state and federal authorities promptly began sifting these affairs. Within a remarkably short time, in view of the wide extent of his affairs, he was tried in a state court for embezzlement and a jury disagreed. Soon after he was placed on trial in federal court and a few days ago was found guilty.
His sentence of ten years in prison, accompanied by a $10,000 fine, was the maximum. Federal Judge A. B. Anderson has long been known for heavy sentences imposed upon intelligent and powerful men who have failed in a trust, and known as well for leniency with the weak and misguided.
Governor McCray had a great opportunity to win a secure place in the esteem of his people by public service. He failed, and the precision and speed with which the authorities and the courts proceeded to mete out the punishment due any criminal will greatly add to respect for the law in Indiana.

TAMMANY
Charles F. Murphy whatever his personal charms represented politically a type which our system of government fosters and condones. However a questionable model to hold up to tender youth anticipating a public career, Murphy's power had wide ramifications and he takes his place as one of the heroes of Tammany with all of good and all of bad that term implies to the student of American politics. Tweed and Croker his predecessors left no enduring monuments behind, no record of public service, no contribution to the public cause. Murphy joins their rank as poor in service as the world estimates service.
Tammany has since its inception been selfish and corrupt. It built political power to control political spoils. Governors, judges and officials of lesser degree bid for the favor of its powerful organization. Murphy while a spoilsman against whom not as much could be said as against a Tweed or a Croker, typified the Tammany system, yielding of course as necessity demanded to public opinion when his lieutenants became too obstreperous.

Samuel Untermyer defends Tammany as a Democrat and as a member of the organization, declaring that under Tammy Hall New York has had better government than under "these mongrel, sporadic so-called 'reform' administrations, for which no party can be held responsible."
If Tammany had any merit politically or otherwise that lay chiefly in the idea that to accomplish anything in politics there must be party responsibility. The evil of the system lay in making politics merely a means to control the spoils. Jobs not principles engrossed Tammany.
Murphy had energy, pluck and determination. For these attributes many followed him and loved him.

EDITORIAL REVIEW
Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.
WILDEST EUROPE
The unprovoked murder of two American travelers in Albania again calls attention to the fact that this corner of Europe is uncivilized. There are many intelligent and educated Albanians, some of them resident in the United States, and they bitterly resent any statement to the effect that stable government in Albania is impossible. They point out that the Albanians are physically admirable and that their mental capabilities are equal to those of other Europeans.
These are facts not to be denied. But it is equally undeniable that centuries of isolation have rendered the Albanians a people apart, a people without any adequate conception of civilization, a people still following ancient tribal customs and incapable of comprehending and meaning of a strong central government.
Tribal feuds are of constant occurrence, and tribal massacres are not uncommon and are not punished. In such a land the murder of two foreign travelers is the most natural thing imaginable.
Albania was erected into an independent state after the war of Greece, Bulgaria, Serbia and Montenegro against Turkey.
Serbia had expected to annex Albania, but was prevented by Austrian jealousy. Various queer governments were tried in this ungovernable region, including a kingdom under William II, a German prince.
During the World War Albania was frankly in a condition of anarchy.
At the end of the World War Italy played the role which Austria had played after the Balkan war, and again Albania was given meaningless independence.
This time however Italy assumed a certain indefinite responsibility, doubtless looking forward to eventual annexation of the country.
The Albanians of education are wholly justified in protesting against annexation to Yugoslavia, for the Albanians have nothing in common with the Yugoslavs.
The hate even less in common with the Italians.
But it seems unavoidable that some nation must soon take charge.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

WHAT ABOUT THE PUBLIC?
While the Railroad Labor Board is far from having achieved complete success in adjusting disputes, it is certainly a better instrument for the purpose than the carefully controlled machinery which the rail men's unions are demanding that Congress set up in its place.
The union scheme, set forth in the Barkley bill, is to organize adjustment boards made up of representatives of the national unions and of the railroads. When a dispute is brought before a board of mediation is provided, which may try its hand at reaching a solution.
This is obviously a fine scheme for the unions, if for no one else. It completely ignores those railroad employees who are not affiliated with national unions, but who are thus far forced into the labor union by the law.
It is aimed to put an end to the "company unions." And, perhaps worst of all, it provides no recognition whatever for the public, the great third party in every dispute that threatens to tie up the railroads, to impair their service in any way, or to make it more costly through higher rates.
The public, who pays the bills, it furnishes the traffic. It grants the franchises to operate. It delegates the privileges and responsibilities of common carriers to the roads. It protects the rights and wages of the employees.
Yet the rail unions propose to sign the labor in the public's face when they are disputing to settle. They propose to make it an affair of merely the men and the roads, with no interference tolerated from the public whose interest is paramount to every other interest concerned.
And the rail unions have succeeded by threats of vengeance in November in frightening a hundred and fifty members of the House to petition for taking the Barkley bill away from the Interstate Commerce Committee, where hearings were to have been held and bringing it directly on the floor of the House for summary action.
Here we have another example of the power of corrupt energetic groups to force action under the present block system and the failure of party responsibility. The parties used to represent the public, to fight for its rights and privileges. Who is there now to represent the public's cause, to defend it from the onslaughts of the minorities?—Minneapolis Journal.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS
BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
THE ABSENT-MINDED FISHERMAN
"Let's go to see the fisherman who found the funny bottle," said Nick. "Doesn't he live in Once-Upon-a-Time Land?"
"Right!" said Mister Muggs. So they all climbed into the little car and away they went over seven times seven frog-ponds and seven times seven minnow-brooks until at last they came to a great great big ocean.
And there was the fisherman's cottage. And sitting in a little boat was the fisherman himself, trying to catch a herring for his dinner. When he saw that he had company, he rowed his little boat to shore.
"We came to see your queer bottle!" said Nick.
"What queer bottle?" asked the fisherman in surprise.
"The one you fished out of the water one time," said Nick. "It had a bad giant in it, and when you took the cork out he came out, too, like smoke. That's what the story said."
"Give the great horn spoon!" cried the fisherman. "So it did! Only it all happened so long ago I had forgotten about it. I only got that bad fellow back in the bottle by fooling him. I put the bottle away in a cupboard and I've kept it ever since. I plumb forgot I had it."
The fisherman hauled it down, but in doing so the stopper fell out and as quick as a flash a thin stream of smoke started to come out. It soon grew to an enormous size, floating up to the ceiling, and a giant appeared.
"Hello, there, everybody," he cried. "Where am I? I must have been asleep!"
"You've been asleep for years 'n' years," said the fisherman.
"Oh, I remember," said the big fellow. "And you played a trick on me to get me back in the bottle. Well, that won't happen again for I'm too smart for you. The first thing I'm going to do is to swallow the sea so you can't catch any more fish. And the second thing is—"
But he didn't finish for just then a marvelous thing happened.
Mr. Muggs opened two windows and the wind rushed in at one window and blew the bottle giant out of the other, because he was only smoke, anyway—or something like it.
"OO-oo-oo! I want back in my bottle!" he heard him say away off in the distance.
But it was too late. He was gone for good.
"Well, I guess I'll sleep better now," said the fisherman. "It isn't very comfortable to have a giant 'round the house."
"Why, I thought you said you had forgotten about him!" cried Mister Muggs.
"Well, I guess I forgot that I had forgotten," said the fisherman. "O, but I am getting absent-minded! Do you know whether I caught a herring or not when I went fishing?"
"No, you didn't," said Nancy. "There were none in the boat."
"Well, then, if you'll excuse me," said the fisherman. "I'll go and get one for my supper. I do feel better now to have a giant in the house. Or was it a dwarf? I forgot already."
"Good-by!" called the visitors as they rode away.

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO LESLIE PRESCOTT, CARE OF THE SECRET DRAWER, CONTINUED
Later in the evening we discussed my husband and I, Sally Atherton, a little.
"I confess," said Jack, "that I don't understand that woman at all."
"Why do you call her that woman, Jack?" You know a man never makes the prefix of 'that' before 'woman' that the woman in question does not either interest or annoy him very much.
"Sally Atherton does not annoy me," said Jack slowly. "I don't understand her, though, at all."
"You saw her when she came to the office this morning. She had just, as you know, buried her husband, and yet there was no awkward mark of grief about her. She was wearing the same light gray tweed suit and sport hat that she has worn ever since she came to work for me."
"I tried to offer her some condolence, but she put me off in an absolutely casual way, saying: 'Some day I will tell you all about my married life, if you want to hear it.' Just now we must get off these plans to the history people and she went on working as though she had been talking about the most unimportant matter. In fact just before I went out to luncheon I heard her humming to herself."
"Did you know her very well, Leslie? Did she think she was in love when she married her husband? To me, at times, for a second or two I think I find the most feminine woman I have ever known; then she becomes a purely business automaton."
"She is very interesting. She tells me one of the new phases of sex."
"Sally always was queer, Jack," I observed. "You see she had to earn her living early. Her father died when she was 14 years old, and she had to work immediately, not only to take care of herself, but to help her mother who was quite an invalid."
"For some reason, Jack, that you may know better than I, being a man, men have always admired Sally Atherton greatly. From the time she was 16 until she was 20 and married Sam, she kept losing positions because she resented the unwelcome attention of some man higher up in the office. Just what it is about her that invites this, I do not know."
"She is—darned—adorable." These words came from Jack as though they were pulled out of him against his will.
"I believe that is what every man has thought Jack, that she has come within the radius of Sally Atherton's smile. Yet she is not pretty, she doesn't dress particularly well, what is it?"
"I don't know," he answered. "I think perhaps it is because she piques your curiosity, and then she seems to be so very well able to take care of herself under all circumstances. Ordinarily that coqueness in a woman is annoying to a man, but in Sally Atherton it makes you want to demonstrate to her that she is wrong."

SANER TELLS OF NEED OF BETTER PUBLIC SPIRIT
Pinehurst, N. C., May 3.—A plea to lift America "above" the slough of unnecessary politics and "carry it steadily forward as a government of liberty under the law," was urged upon lawyers attending the convention of the North Carolina Bar Association in an address tonight by Robert E. L. Saner, of Dallas, president of the American Bar Association.
The call for active, intelligent and unselfish public service was never more insistent than today, Mr. Saner asserted, who said the traditions of the flag and the men who launched the government joined in admonishing "us to obey this call."
"The only forces that can preserve our republic are men with convictions and the courage of their convictions," he continued. "My plea is that a modicum of the same sort of courage that actuated our fathers should be manifested not only by public officials but by the great mass of private and the ranks of our citizenship. What we must have is an active exercise of the duties of citizenship by men who stand outside of party or class, whose sole motive and objective is the public weal, and who have the courage to tear a question open and let the light through it. We must have men who stand for the right, for justice, for liberty under the law, for government under the Constitution, and who will carry our republic forward toward the fulfillment of its high mission as a leader and exemplar for the emulation and inspiration of all the nations of the earth."

The essays will be judged in each state, and the grand national prize is a free trip to Washington. There also will be a state prize.

IN A BOY'S POCKETS
BY ALBERT APPLE
The pockets of small boys yield peculiar collections. Maybe you read about nine-year-old Arthur Parker, knocked down and run over by a taxi. In his pockets they found 5 tops, 73 brass buttons, 60 marbles, 2 oranges, a wooden cigaret holder, a pair of clappers, 10 cigarets, a mouth organ and a jew's-harp.
This will not surprise the mother of any healthy lad with normal tendencies. If there's anything amazing about Arthur's pockets, it's that the contents didn't include a toad, a couple of white rats, a quart of bright pebbles and several radio sets.
The small boy is close to the savage state. His mania for collecting odds and ends of "junk" is inherited from the savage, who adorns himself with glass beads, feathers, etc. The instinct of accumulation asserts itself in the lowest forms of human life. Civilization makes it more intense.
This accumulative instinct separates us from the animals. Crows and rats sometimes gather and hide queer collections. But as a rule the animal accumulates only what is actually needed to sustain life.
The squirrel works scientifically, hoarding nuts but not any more than will be needed during the winter. The ant has his storehouse of food. So does the bee. But the purpose of their accumulation is to keep them alive when food is scarce.
Man alone tries to accumulate more than he needs.
The way people fight for money, you'd think they expected to be here on earth for at least several thousand years. Does any of them ever get enough? Not so you can notice.
The savage with his glass beads, the boy with pockets crammed full of trash, the rich man struggling to acquire wealth that he no longer needs—all three have much in common.
It is wise and necessary to provide for emergency, old age and a "better chance" for the children. But when we pass a certain point in accumulating the quest becomes an obsession and life loses its color.
A large part of the misery, friction, hatred and ill health of life is due directly to the mania for acquiring more wealth than we need. Life can be a very happy adventure and journey, if we enjoy ourselves as we go along instead of trying to hog everything in sight.
Thrift, carried to extremes, is a savage vice.

TRACK MEN OF HIGH SCHOOL GETTING START

Class Meet Held to Pick Talent For Capital City Meet on May 10

Bismarck high school track and field athletes got their first real test in preparation for the big Capital City Track and Field Meet to be held in Bismarck May 10, when the inter-class meet was held. Bismarck athletes will face stiff competition when 100 of the best athletes in the high schools of this territory come here next week, but the local school hopes to make a good showing in the meet.

Hazleton will send a high school athlete who runs the mile in 5:40, according to reports, while Linton and Hazen each have a man who can run the hundred yard dash in 10 seconds, and Hazen has a man who can throw a 21 foot.

One of the features of the Capital City meet will be the exhibition run by Rolf Harmsen, the famous mute athlete. In practice here the other day he ran the 100-yard dash in 9.45 seconds and the 50-yard dash in 5.3 seconds. The world's record for the 50-yard dash is 5.2 seconds.

The track was a little soggy today, but it is expected to be as fast as any college track when the meet is held next Saturday.

CHILEAN WINS OVER PAL MORAN

New York, May 3.—Luis Vicentini, Chilean lightweight, was given a judge's verdict over Pal Moran, of New Orleans, in a slow 12 round bout at Madison Square Garden last night.

The Chilean was the aggressor from the start, but Moran's body attack piled up a large total of points, according to newspapermen, and the decision went on the records as an unpopular one. For minutes after the announcement the arena resounded with the hoots of the fans.

HARRIS RETAINS TALL TITLE BY SCANT MARGIN

Washington, May 2.—Bryan Harris, Connie Mack's elongated twirler, almost lost his title of the tallest man in the American League in recent competition.

On the Washington club is Slim McGrew, known to his teammates as "Dangerous Dan." Like Harris, he is a right-handed pitcher. The first time he was trotted out to the box to face the Athletics, an argument was started as to whether he was taller than Harris. The discussion waxed so warm that the players of both teams had their rival candidates for perpendicular honors line up and be measured.

The result enables Harris to retain his title as champion tall man of the American League. He is just a half-inch higher than McGrew, who measures six feet five and one-half inches.

It will be in the nature of a circus attraction when Harris opposes McGrew on the mound.

EDDIE HEARNE USES OAKLAND

Eddie Hearne, officially enthroned "speed king" of 1923 by the American Automobile Association for winning the greatest number of points in races under the auspices of this organization during last year, has already arrived in Indianapolis in preparation for the great American 500-mile classic held there each year.

HALF PINT, FULL PINT

In the Tall Mr. Harris and the Short Mr. Meeker the Athletics' Pitchers Run to Great Extremes.

BY BILLY EVANS
 Good pitchers come in assorted sizes.

The twirling staff of Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics offers conclusive proof.

One of the members is the elongated Bryan Harris, who measures six feet and six inches, yet weighs only 180 pounds. He is a right hander. Another member of Mack's staff is Donald Meeker, five feet six inches, weight 155. He is a southpaw, and a mighty promising one.

In Bryan Harris and Donald Meeker, Connie Mack presents the long and short of it in pitching, as far as the American League is concerned. There is just the matter of one foot difference between the two from a perpendicular standpoint, with Harris holding the edge.

Considered horizontally, the diminutive Meeker has much the best of it. He is a stocky, well set up recruit.

The Nut Cracker

BY JOE WILLIAMS
 STRAIGHT DOPE BENNY ON THE RADIO
 (The Noted Half-Wit Discourses Unintelligently on Marathon Runners.)

The beauty about marathon running is that it keeps the insects out in the air, but not long enough.

Marathoning is a subtle science like the cultivation of dandruff and the development of triple chin. It comes naturally, if at all.

Marathon runners are always on the go but unfortunately they never go where we'd like to send them.

To be disgustingly successful in marathoning one must have a well developed set of intellectual ankles and a full quota of cerebral calves.

Marathon runners do not go in for any special diet. They can eat anything and so if the directions are understandable.

Marathon runners are always accompanied by trainers riding bicycles. You can judge from this how much brains it takes to be a trainer and how little to be a marathon runner.

Marathon runners are hard eggs and usually live to be a ripe old age, which is another reason why the sport should be discouraged.

Old Hi Johnson, who has been running all year and getting nowhere, must know how it feels to run a marathon.

Marathon runners must have good wind and plenty of it and in this respect they suggest golfers who have holed out in one.

Marathon runners who lead the simple life usually succeed, which serves them right.

(Next week Straight Dope Benny will discuss the vice presidency and other non-essentials.)

URBAN SHOCKER

By NEA Service
 Cleveland, April 30.—Urban Shocker, star pitcher of the St. Louis Browns, whose mysterious disappearance from the club some days ago created the impression that he had deserted, is here recovering from a severe attack of tonsillitis. Shocker denies that he has any differences with Manager George Sisler or any of the club executives. "If they don't know where I am," explains Shocker, "it's probably because I didn't tell them."

Mr. Shocker, it might be added, is a star, and a temperamental star and he does just about as he pleases, whether it pleases anyone else or not.

Billy Evans Says

What is the value of the pinch hitter in baseball? The other day no less an authority than Miller Huggins, manager of the world champions, the New York Yankees, answered that question for me.

OLD STARS IN LEAD EARLY IN BATTING RACE

Heilmann, Cobb, Hornsby and Sisler Among Those Setting the Pace

SISLER'S COME-BACK

Chicago, May 3.—Old familiar names—Heilmann, Cobb, Hornsby and Sisler—top the list of leading batters in the major leagues today, as the clubs swing into the first test of the 1924 campaign.

Harry Heilmann, slugging ace of the Detroit Tigers, and 1923 batting champion of the American league, is blazing the trail for the American leaguers with an average of .468. The illustrious Ty Cobb is trailing second with .434. Heilmann, on figures compiled on the basis of Wednesday's games, connected with 22 hits in 13 games, including a brace of homers. Cobb, in addition to getting 23 hits, leads the league in scoring with fourteen.

The comeback of George Harold Sisler, premier star of the 1922 season, is one of the outstanding achievements. Sisler, making his debut as manager of the Browns, after a year's absence, is in the first flight with an average of .356, a record of scoring ten runs, and making 21 hits, including four doubles and a pair of triples.

Babe Ruth, although down in the list with an average only .282 is off to a sensational start in his drive for home run honors. He smashed out five, which is the high mark of both leagues. This mark, with the season only three weeks old, is ahead of his performance during the first three weeks of the 1921 campaign when he hung up his record of fifty-nine.

Captain Eddie Collins of the White Sox is showing the way to the base stealers with four thefts.

Other leading batters participating in ten or more games: Meusel, New York 384; Grimes, Boston .376; Simmons, Philadelphia .375; Stephenson, Cleveland .373; Sheely, Chicago .370; Picinich, Boston .364; Sisler, St. Louis .356; Gerberg, St. Louis .356.

Hornsby Going
 In the National League, Rogers Hornsby, 1923 batting champion, is setting the pace with an average of .428, while the veteran Zack Wheat of Brooklyn, checked in with .380 for second place. Hornsby also is sharing scoring honors with Grimes and Grantham of the Cubs, each of whom has registered thirteen times, and has taken the lead for home run honors with four.

The veteran Max Carey of the Pirates is as active as ever on the base lines and is leading the base stealers with five.

Other leading batters: Cincinnati .367; Pinchiff, Cincinnati .364; Grimes, Chicago .345; Caveney, Cincinnati .341; Grimm, Pittsburgh .340; Smith, St. Louis .333; Fournier, Brooklyn .333; Harper, Cincinnati .333.

Bunny Brief of Kansas City is safely perched at the head of the American Association list with an average of .466. Reb Russell of Columbus has scored four homers, and 43 runs, for an average of .404 giving him third place. Davis, also of Columbus is the second with .417.

Formulate Fall Chemist And Lead To His Arrest

 was patched up about a year ago, when they went abroad on their second honeymoon.

But their new happiness lasted a short time only. The old suspicions were again renewed. Both Baring and his wife became highly nervous.

He tried to counteract this irritability by increased interest in his laboratory. He would work at his test tubes and experiments for hours at a time. And he would be calm.

However, his wife had nothing to quiet her nerves. Left alone she would brood more and more, and suspicion grew.

Finally she became ill. Her physician was puzzled by her ailment. Her husband took her to Atlantic City, but her condition grew worse. He brought her back to a hotel in New York. Finally she had to be taken home in an ambulance.

She began to suspect that she was being poisoned. Her physician agreed with her, and the watch on her husband began.

Whenever Baring went away, his wife's condition improved. As soon as he returned and began nursing her, the illness increased. Examination of the food given her showed signs of arsenic and strychnine. At the same time it was discovered that a "C. Barnes" was getting many phials of diphtheria, pneumonia, typhoid and influenza germs from two New York hospitals for "experimental purposes."

"Barnes" was identified as Baring. And the arrest was finally made.

On arraignment in court he pleaded guilty. "Except for the intent to kill," the judge constructed this as a plea of "Not Guilty," and Baring will have to stand trial.

A defense of insanity probably will be developed. Some of his friends say that he has been suffering from a chemist-omplex—a pseudo-scientific obsession that grew so strong that he may have used his wife for his experiments without her knowledge.

"SALLY," WITH LEON ERROL, WINS PRAISE OF LARGE AUDIENCE IN BISMARCK

"Sally" was a pretty little coquette in the alley, but when she came out of it last night with all the rest in the Ziegfeld show, dressed in their finest and embellished with rich scenic effects, an audience which filled the Auditorium was completely captivated.

From start to finish the show moved at a smart pace, with fun, music, dancing and sheer beauty, combined with finished stagecraft, giving the audience everything that was expected of what is known as Florenz Ziegfeld's pet musical comedy. Two stars there were—Leon Errol and Walter Catlett—and a successor to Marilyn Miller in the title role—Shirley Vernon, who danced and sang her way through the show with a little more grace and charm than gave voice to the prediction that if she has not yet arrived she is going to.

"Sally" came here from the Pacific Coast, is the first truly Ziegfeld show to come to the Auditorium, and set a new standard in the east for shows of its kind, and lived up to its reputation here.

There was Leon Errol, marvelous at mimicry and drill of action, who literally fell all over the place in grotesque fashion. "Falling is Errol's long suit. He's practiced it so long that it has become a virtue with him. He lands in such an amazing way that it appears a corkscrew is necessary to untangle him, yet he springs out of it with a grace that aids effect to his gymnastics. He is probably the best known musical comedian of the country, showing what a little practice with a circus acrobat will do for an actor.

Walter Catlett, in the role of the theatrical agent, breezy, reeling with slang, a small edition of Ed Wynn talking himself right into the good humor of his audience, deserves the place his name was given on the bill with Errol. His chatterbox wit was spun out so fast that a good part of the audience was laughing two lengths behind his latest remark, but since all were funny it was just as well.

Then comes Shirley Vernon. Those who had seen Marilyn Miller could realize that the part of "Sally" must have been created just for her, and she was the only member of the original New York cast missing. But when Shirley Vernon, smiling and sang and danced everybody agreed

he. For her beauty, youth, grace, nimble toes and inimitable charm, made her adorable in rags or in fine raiment.

Another delectable morsel of beauty tidbits served up by "the best picker of 'em all" was Kathlene Martyn with a blonde loveliness that made her a perfect place in the front row; there was the tall and patrician Katherine Sacker, and a whole bevy of chorus girls who seemed to carry a natural bloom in their cheeks, not to mention a male chorus that did not look insipid and could sing. Sirens all, and the fab of the show was the fact that they had to take him safely past them. Phil Ryley did a comic bit in "fine style" and Irving Fisher who wore his clothes like a Saturday Evening Post advertisement added a pleasing tenor voice to the production.

Superb color marked the costumes, spontaneity marked the clean wit, and the production moved swiftly all the time, with never a dull moment from the start. The book "Sally" is by Guy Bolton, and the Clifford Grey lyrics, Kern's melodies and Victor Herbert's music, with Urban's scenery helped to make the production just about the best there is. Bismarck folks hope Ziegfeld will send another show here.

AT THE MOVIES

THE CAPITOL
Never before have motion picture fans had the opportunity to see the immensely charming Mae Murray in a photoplay so dazzling, so fascinating, so gorgeous and so entertaining as "The French Doll," her newest Metro picture, which comes to the Capitol Theatre on Monday. It was produced in the elaborate style characteristic of her former screen plays, but it is more elaborate than anything which has come before. And in it Miss Murray, known as the best dressed star on the screen wears the most luxurious gowns ever seen on stage or screen.

"The French Doll" was adapted to the screen by Frances Marion from the play by A. E. Thomas. It is presented by Robert Z. Leonard and was produced by Tiffany Productions, of which Mr. Leonard is director general and M. H. Hoffman general manager. Cedric Gibbons was art director and the action was photographed by Oliver T. Marsh. Alfred A. Cohn wrote the titles.

THE ELTINGE

With a distinguished cast made up of Marie Prevost, Florence Vidor, Monte Blue, Harry Myers, Adolphe Menjou and Creighton Hale, "The Marriage Circle," which comes to the Eltinge Theatre for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday has already created a furor in other cities where it played. It is an Ernst Lubitsch production, dealing with a mad mixup in modern matrimony. It is hailed as a distinct departure from all previous photoplays bearing the famous Lubitsch stamp. For the first time in his cinematic career as producer and director, Lubitsch has made a thorough study of American people's psychology and the pictures they like to see, and his aim is producing "The Marriage Circle" was to make a picture that would have a general American significance, dealing as it does with a situation very typical of a percentage of marriages in the United States.

YOUTH INJURED IN THEATER

Arnold Von Hagen Will Soon Be Out of Hospital, However

Arnold Von Hagen, high school student, was severely injured late yesterday when he fell backwards through a trunk hatchway in the Auditorium while helping to take care of the equipment of the "Sally" musical show. He was rendered unconscious, and remained in that condition for a half hour.

This afternoon physicians reported that an X-ray examination revealed no broken bones, and that he probably would be all right in a few days. The youth fell backwards, eight to ten feet, alighting on his head and shoulders. His shoulders were badly bruised, he sustained a severe bump on the back of head and his thorax was painfully injured.

ASKS REMOVAL OF SURCHARGE

Examiner's Report to I. C. C. Says Pullman Charge Unreasonable

Washington, May 3.—Passenger fare surcharges paid by Pullman travellers to railroads are held "unreasonable and discontinuance of the practice is recommended in an examiner's report to the Interstate Commerce Commission, made public. Arguments in the case before the commission are assigned for May 8.

Considering that the railroads are saved the capital investment in Pullman equipment and other facilities necessary to maintain and to an extent operate the cars and that most of the railroads are receiving substantial payments out of the charges collected for the Pullman service proper, the report says, it is believed that the time has come when the commission may well eliminate the surcharge.

Investigation into the reasonableness of the surcharge rates was instituted by the commission at the request of travellers' organizations, chambers of commerce, shippers, hotel association and other associations. The examiner recommended that

You will find that automotive engineers acknowledge that Oakland's advanced features have set a new standard for light-six power, smoothness and durability.

② Oakland's chassis incorporates the latest and best. The rugged frame, silent rear axle, easily operated clutch and transmission, and smooth-riding springs make a perfectly-balanced light six.

③ Oakland is the only light six having four-wheel brakes as standard—the most important feature brought out in 1924. Buy a car with four-wheel brakes this spring and you will not find yourself with an obsolete model next year.

④ Centralized controls—on the steering wheel right under your hand—are so convenient you wouldn't do without them once you've used them. Now exclusive with Oakland.

When you invest your money in a car you certainly want the latest word in performance and design. See the True Blue Oakland and drive it. Then you will realize why it pays to make careful comparisons before you choose your new car this spring.
